What does IAV provide for exhibiting artists?

Inclusive Arts Vermont provides:

- show installation, including art transport, at several venues throughout the state
- increased awareness and promotion for the artist and their art on our website, in newsletters, and on our social media platforms
- focused promotion of artists website, online shops, and connecting our audiences to more of your artwork

- Potential for public facing artist talks and events (depending on grants)
- support in framing artwork (if needed)
- free artist networking events with other exhibiting artists facilitated by IAV staff
- professional development support in writing artist bios, artist statements, and photographing of artwork (if desired)

Accessibility:

All tour venues will be physically accessible. As part of these exhibitions, we offer a full range of accessibility services including print materials in braille and large print, an audio tour, verbal descriptions of every work in the show, tactile elements, sensory kits, and ASL and captioning at events upon request.

Can I sell my work?

Yes, The artists are compensated directly if the work sells, and Inclusive Arts Vermont does not take a commission (though some venues do). That has been 20-30%.
